Topic

The Patient University at Hannover Medical School, founded in 2005, aims to improve empowerment and health literacy of patients and citizens. We provide knowledge about health and health care, patients' rights, navigation in the health care system, or evidence-based patient information. We will discuss the concept, the acceptance, the outreach and future developments, i.e. in digital health.

Speaker

Prof. Dr. Marie-Luise Dierks

Educational scientist, since 2004 Professor of Public Health at the Hannover Medical School (MHH), co-initiator and head of the Patient University at the MHH, head of the research unit "Patient orientation and Health Education".

Research topics: Empowerment and health literacy, patient satisfaction, quality of patient information and advice, empowerment, strengthening of self-management skills and digital competence in people with chronic diseases, effects of patient participation in support groups.
